Help! Someone has stolen all the capital letters and full stops. This makes it very hard to read. Can you put them in the correct places?

antarctica is a very cold place with lots of snow and ice seals and whales live there they are good at staying warm in the freezing weather many animals find food in the icy ocean and some penguins huddle together to keep cosy and safe from the cold winds

Maths

This week we have been comparing numbers to 100. We have been using the symbols $<$, $>$ or $=$ to compare them. Have a look at the numbers below, can you work out the correct symbol to compare them?

47 91

47 39

47 45 47 3 tens + 9 ones

Reading

This week we have started to think about some reading skills, such as making a prediction! Have a look at the picture below and make a prediction about what you think might have happened before and what might happen next.

Computing

We met an animator at our visit to The BFI cinema this week. She was very inspiring and suggested ways that the children can create their own stories using animations at home. A good app to use for this is Stop Motion. All the children need is some cardboard to create different scenes and characters.
